BETHEL CELEBRATES TODAY AND YESTERDAY

As the 1966 Mollycckett Day celebration is concluded, it is interesting to reminisce about the big Sesquicentennial celebration of thirty-five years ago. The following excerpt from a paper dated Aug. 3, 1931 tells of the big event: "It is estimated that between 7,000 and 10,000 people witnessed the celebration of the last Indian Raid in Maine at Bethel, Monday, Aug. 23. To start things off, there was a beautiful parade over a mile long. It is said to have been the best ever witnessed."

The Military band from Portland, a 50 piece band and the File and Drum Corps from Humford furnished music. An air circus scheduled to be staged by the R. and D. Air service just before dinner time was cancelled due to a "low ceiling". Local aviator, Carmelo Onofrio, flew over the village, during the afternoon.

Later came the re-enactment of the Indian raid on the settlers. The characters were announced by Rev. L. A. Edwards, then minister of the West Parish Congregational Church who also gave a brief history of the raid. He named two characters in particular, C. C. Bryant, the only living member of the same raid 50 years before, and Estlin Warren, the great-great-granddaughter of Bejar who was one of the first settlers of Bethel. This was followed by a poem read by Clarence Hall.

The Indians next raided the cabin and burned it. They took prisoners who were later rescued by the settlers. Fred Clark played the part of the settler burned at the stake and it was very thrilling. The remainder of the pageant cast was as follows: Clark's wife was impersonated by Mrs. Ruth Carter, the granddaughter, Chauncey Bryant, settlers, Eusebio Whitman, Trafton Bartlett, Edson Warren, Dale Thurston, Indian Chief, Hugh Thurston, Indian, Edward Lyon, John Howe Jr. E. L. Brown, Eldridge Berry, Wilbert Bartlett, Norris Brown, Paul Brown, Louis Van Ken Kenken, Clarence Bennett, William Bartlett, Albert Gurner, Robert Littlefield, Ashby Tibbets and John Twardlo. ## SEN. MUSKIE REPORTS

In May, I introduced The Intergovernmental Personnel Act of 1966 to enable greater cooperation in personnel matters among the various levels of government to improve the administration of Federal grants and programs. It would strengthen the public services of the states and their localities.

I am convinced that the success of Federal programs largely depends on whether or not we recognize and overcome the crisis in State and local government manpower shortages.

The Federal government must undertake greater responsibility to provide financial, technical and other forms of assistance to the States and localities to help them meet a broad attack on this problem. Although most of the recent Federal aid legislation provides the funds necessary to carry out these programs, the job of implementation falls to the

We must produce almost everything in this country — EXCEPT CHARACTER

It used to be that when you wanted something, you worked to earn it. Now you stage a riot to get it given to you at someone else's expense.

If your father or grandfather lost his job, he took whatever work he could get, and he went (probably walked miles) to where there was work—any honest work—being done. Now hordes of "clients" refuse a job unless it is to their liking, and they demand the job be brought to them in their community.

This nation was built by immigrants (beginning in the 1800's and earlier) who struggled here for opportunity, and would have earned the false idea of "something for nothing." Now it seems to be an almost universal trend all-too-often the only ambition.

It used to take a lifetime of grueling work and scrimping for a family or a country to earn a little surplus, a taste of security. Now mobs of stupid "students" and whole "emerging nations" demand they be given it, out of your earnings and with no effort on their part.

"Minority groups" all over the earth seem to think the world owes them everything they want. So vicious destructiveness makes necessary higher taxes to pay for more police to protect decent citizens, higher taxes for playgrounds and parks which hoodlums promptly make unsafe; higher taxes for schooling for gangs who don't seem to want or are unable to be educated. The minority groups whose rights no one seems to consider are the taxpayers and decent citizens—who may have been pampering evil too long.—(advertisement of Warner & Swasey, Cleveland.)

Just Captain, Edmund Smith, Phillip Chapman, Alton Hutchinson, Rev. Roy Dabell, Roy Hamlin, Sherman Greenleaf, Earl Williamson, Elton Daley and Robert Sanborn, nearby settler, who gave the alarm, Leslie Davis.

Besides the parade and pageant there was much doing during the day on the midway and plenty of music coming from the quarters of the Fifth Infantry band. In the evening dancing was enjoyed at the pavilion built especially for the occasion.

States, the counties, the cities, and towns. However, State and local governments are having trouble attracting and holding professional, managerial, and technical personnel. These governmental units will undoubtedly experience even greater difficulties in the future.

This legislation deals directly with three major hurdles confronting State and local governments in recruiting and holding qualified employees.

(1) The Merit System in Grant Aid Programs. There is a definite relationship between attracting and retaining competent public administrators and the presence of a merit system. Provisions of the Intergovernmental Personnel Act are based on this relationship and require that to receive Federal funds under any grant program, personnel engaged in its administration must be employed under a merit system meeting Federal standards.

(2) Overall Personnel Administration.

(3) Training. Linked to an improved merit system and efficient personnel management is the need for more and better training opportunities after appointment to a public service position. Federal agency training programs would be opened up to State and local personnel in counterpart agencies. A grant-in-aid program for in-service training of State and local employees would be established. It would hopefully encourage expanded efforts to develop training programs on a regional basis.

The Intergovernmental Personnel Act of 1966 would, in the President's words, "develop a creative federalism to test the wonderful diversity of our institutions and peoples to solve the problems, fulfill the dreams of the American people."

Just being in the right place at the right time is not enough. Nearly all the divers in fatal collisions are in the right place defensively as if your life depended on it. It does.

20 SECONDS WITH THE NAZARENE GIVE LAVISHLY — LIVE ABUNDANTLY

The more you give, the more you get — The more you laugh, the less you fret — The more you do unselfishly, The more you live abundantly. The more of everything you share, The more you'll always have to spare — The more you love, the more you'll find That life is good and friends are kind. Illustration—State and local resources for public personnel administration have not kept pace with the growth of the programs they administer. The inadequate support of personnel planning and operations has left many personnel agencies short of needed professional personnel including job analysts and training staff.

The Intergovernmental Personnel Act recognizes these needs and attempts to come to grips with these problems. Under this Act, Federal grants would be authorized to help States strengthen their systems of personnel administration, provide State personnel services to local government, and stimulate projects for the improvement of personnel administration in larger cities.

(3) Training. Linked to an improved merit system and efficient personnel management is the need for more and better training opportunities after appointment to a public service position. Federal agency training programs would be opened up to State and local personnel in counterpart agencies. A grant-in-aid program for in-service training of State and local employees would be established. It would hopefully encourage expanded efforts to develop training programs on a regional basis.

The Intergovernmental Personnel Act of 1966 would, in the President's words, "develop a creative federalism to test the wonderful diversity of our institutions and peoples to solve the problems, fulfill the dreams of the American people."

Just being in the right place at the right time is not enough. Nearly all the divers in fatal collisions are in the right place defensively as if your life depended on it. It does.

MOLLYCKETT DAY IS GREAT SUCCESS

Bethel's 1966 Mollyckett Day was met with such remarks as outstanding, elegant, spectacular and unique! From the very beginning of the day, with the field events, spectators witnessed an array of events which captivated the attention of all. This year's parade was probably the largest and most inclusive of all parades held in recent years. The auction, food booths, antique exhibit, art show, game party, supper and dance all seemed to show peak receipts. There were rides and activities for the children and cultural exhibits for adults all day long.

A preliminary report indicates that this was an extremely successful venture on the part of the Bethel Health and Service Council. The proceeds from Mollyckett Day will greatly help the Health Council in its programs for better community health and emergencies. Many of our townspeople have witnessed the well-baby clinics, polio clinics, and family aid in times of emergency which are typical of the Health Council. The Mollyckett Day success means that the Council will be able to continue its charitable work during the next year.

The chairman of the day's affairs, Rev. Donald Hess, indicated that the cooperation of citizens in the endeavor was outstanding and efficient. Perhaps the best indication of the day's success is the following report of net receipts and expenses:

HIGHWAY COMMISSION TO OPEN BIDS FOR BRIDGE CONSTRUCTION IN COUNTY

Bids will be opened by the State Highway Commission on Wednesday, August 17, for the construction of bridges in Rumford and Greenwood.

One of the Rumford projects calls for the widening of Prospect Avenue Bridge at the foot of Falls Hill. The work will reduce the sharp curve in U. S. Route 2 at the junction of Bridge Street and Prospect Avenue by widening the 25-foot span on the east or downstream side. The improvement will extend along U. S. 2 for 370 feet plus a short section of Prospect Avenue. The intersection will be modernized with the construction of traffic islands and the reconstructed area paved with bituminous concrete.

The other Rumford project calls for the replacement of the outmoded wooden deck structure on the Concord Pond Road where it crosses the Concord River. The new bridge will be a modern 32-foot steel and concrete span with a roadway width of 20 feet. The new crossing will be 100 feet downstream from the old bridge in order that a sharp curve in the present road may be eliminated. The approaches to the new bridge will be constructed for a total distance of about 700 feet. The completed highway will have a 29-foot bituminous treated traveled way and 4-foot gravel shoulders.

Britton's Iron Bridge on Route 239 in Greenwood will be replaced with a modern 34-foot reinforced concrete span. The new structure will have a 20-foot roadway. The grade will be raised at the bridge to take the dip out of the road and the alignment will be improved east of the crossing to eliminate a hazardous curve. The approaches to the new bridge will be reconstructed for a distance of 650 feet, and the completed highway will have a 24-foot bituminous treated traveled way and 4-foot gravelled shoulders.

WATER POLLUTION MOST NOTICEABLE AT THIS TIME OF YEAR

This time of year when the streams and ponds are low and waterflow is at a minimum, water pollution is particularly noticeable.

Along some shorelines there is a growth of algae which is not only unsightly to the eye but sometimes to the nose as well. The accumulation of excessive water-algae growth, particularly algae, has become increasingly objectionable to recent years as the water pollution problem has worsened.

Not all algae growth is attributable to pollution. In proper amounts it is a desirable and necessary factor in the food chain of water life. But as a result of man's domestic and industrial activities, fertilized and mineralized nutrients have been introduced into the water causing a fast and undesirable proliferation of algal bloom.

Excessive growth of algae has been noted throughout the nation and it is most obvious in rivers which run through urban and industrial areas. The Connecticut River has been singled out as high in national algal counts. Many other New England rivers are doubtlessly just as bad.

Algal bloom serves as something of a yardstick to measure pollution. It usually means the presence of large quantities of nutrients, phosphates or other nutrients. Since some types of algae flourish in water temperatures of 70 degrees and above, it can also reflect the heating effect that industrial uses have on water.

Excessive growth upsets the ecological balance in the water environment. It can prevent the energy-giving rays of the sun from penetrating the water and can use up too much of the available oxygen in the water at the expense of other life. This is one of the reasons why polluted water is an unfavorable environment for fish.

A drive toward prevention is needed. Industries should seek new processes and try to develop products which would minimize disposal of nutrients. Waste treatment plants can strive for better techniques for achieving nitrogen and phosphorus removal.

The Environmental Pollution Board of the President's Science Advisory Committee noted a year ago that much more research is needed in this area before we can arrive at effective control of algal bloom. If we can, it will result in a livable environment for many of our streams, rivers, lakes and ponds throughout the country.
